News from the State Initiative

Love Data Week 2025 – Overview for Lower Saxony

From February 10 to February 14, 2025, the international Love Data Week will take place. During this week, numerous lectures, workshops, coffee lectures, and much more will be offered on the topic of research data and its management. Contributions from German-speaking countries will, as always, be collected by forschungsdaten.info:

<https://forschungsdaten.info/fdm-im-deutschsprachigen-raum/love-data-week-2025/>

The program is typically very packed, making it easy to lose track. Therefore, in addition to forschungsdaten.info, we also compile all contributions from Lower Saxony on our website. While the program is still manageable at the moment, it will fill up over the next few weeks. Feel free to check back regularly:

https://fdm-nds.de/index.php/en/lovedataweek_2025_eng/

As an initiative, we will also participate in Love Data Week with one or more contributions. More information will soon be available on our website and social media channels.

Do you have a contribution to Love Data Week that is not yet listed in our overview? If so, please let us know by writing to us at info@fdm-nds.de.

Survival Kit: Die Nationale Forschungsdateninfrastruktur Deutschland (NFDI)

Our colleagues from the FDM-ndsHAW project (and Pillar Two of FDM-NDS) have released a new Survival Kit. This edition focuses on the National Research Data Infrastructure (NFDI) in Germany. All essential information about the NFDI, its consortia, and sections is summarized succinctly. It's ideal for anyone needing a quick overview and/or those unfamiliar with the NFDI. The publication is in German and you can find it here:
